

AUSPICIOUS DATES

There are three ways to pick an auspicious date — depending upon what is more important — the auspiciousness or the convenience.

1. The date can be worked out based on the horoscope of the party concerned — this date and time is rarely ever “convenient”.
2. One can pick a generally auspicious date as given in the chart below in which one can match timing with convenience.
3. Or one can disregard all considerations of “auspiciousness” and choose a date out of convenience only. The outcome then, is left entirely to karma.

In the calendar provided, the shaded fortnight is the waning fortnight in which the Moon is losing strength.

The unshaded fortnight is the waxing period when the moon is gaining in strength.

All auspicious functions should be carried out when the moon is waxing. If the matter is urgent and cannot wait then pick one of the generally good days as mentioned in the calendar.

The nakshatras or Lunar Mansions are calculated for sunrise in Sydney, Australia. The Nakshatra at sunrise is said to rule the day.

AMAVASYA is the New Moon when the moon is at its weakest point — this day should be avoided for all auspicious work.

PURNIMA is the Full Moon when the moon is at its strongest.

SANKRANTI is the day in which the Sun changes signs of the zodiac — these days too should be avoided for all auspicious activities.
